Carlotto lawsuit against city said to expose other problems

By James Windell

Why did Sgt. Pat Carlotto file a lawsuit against the City of South Haven?

Was it just sour grapes because he was passed over for the position of Chief of the South Haven Police Department? Is he looking to replace Chief Adam DeBoer?

These are a few of the questions being asked in the wake of a lawsuit that Carlotto filed in late November 2025 in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Michigan. In the suit, Carlotto claims that he was a target of retaliation and discriminatory treatment by being passed over for the permanent position of chief.

While no one familiar with the suit is willing to go on record and be identified, well-placed and knowledgeable sources say that Carlotto only reluctantly filed the lawsuit in order to bring to the public's attention serious flaws in the hiring and promotion system in South Haven.

Carlotto, a 25-year veteran of the South Haven Police Department, was appointed interim police chief after Chief Natalie Thompson retired in September 2024. He held the role until Kevin Swope was hired in January 2025. After Chief Swope resigned just one month into his tenure, Carlotto was again named interim chief. He stepped in to lead the department while the City resumed its search for a permanent replacement.

He served in that role until Dennis Honholt began serving as Chief on April 1, 2025. Honholt resigned a month later, but no interim police chief was named immediately. Sgt. Adam DeBoer was appointed interim chief near the end of April 2025 and was in that position until recently being promoted to Chief.

In his suit, Carlotto states that he has qualifications, credentials, and experience that far exceeded those of the persons the City ended up hiring as its chief of police.

"This is not an Adam DeBoer versus Pat Carlotto issue," said an individual who is familiar with Carlotto and the South Haven Police Department. "DeBoer is a good guy. This is about the system."

Carlotto did not want to sue the City of South Haven, an anonymous source contends. "People will say, 'Oh, he didn't get to be chief so now he's suing.' No, it's not about that. Maybe he should have been selected as chief, but it's the process that is the problem. That's why he sued."

The problem, according to those with information related to the process of selecting chiefs since Thompson retired, is that the process used by the City to select a new chief led to poor choices. This was the case, some people argue, in terms of the selection of Dennis Honholt, the person who only lasted a month before he resigned.

"It was said that City didn't know about Honholt," a source said, "but that is a lie. They knew everything about him He was not even a contender and yet they selected him. Then, they lied about it. That's the thing that frustrates cops the most; that they lied."

Sources say that the promotion process was an additional aspect of the problem. Despite the popularity of Carlotto and public demonstrations in support of him, this – and Carlotto's qualifications – were ignored by the City when they hired Honholt.

Just after Honholt was hired to be Chief in April 2025, an anonymous source told the Beacon that Honholt was not qualified to lead the police department. "If you look closely at his resume, there are problems," the source said. "I don't know what the City Manager was thinking. I don't know why she pushed Honholt through when there were more qualified candidates."

The source went on to report that individuals within the police department brought their concerns before city officials about Honholt's deficiencies.

Also, in an interview with the Beacon in March, 2025, Bishop Joe Wilkins, pastor of Resurrection Life Ministries Church, said that he and other residents he's talked to wanted the process of selecting a new police chief to be more transparent.

"I along with several other faith leaders on the southside of Ward One were involved in the interviewing process before," Wilkins said. "We and other stakeholders were involved in the process of selecting, finalizing and narrowing down the list of candidates," he said referring to the selection of Natalie Thompson as chief in 2016. "But this time, it appears that community stakeholders, at least when it comes to faith-based leaders, have not been involved. They are just allowing a third party to do this."

Wilkins went on to say that just relying on the Michigan Municipal League to do the narrowing down of candidates is not the best way of coming up with a short list of candidates for the position. The Michigan Municipal League "doesn't know the history of this city. They don't know what it took for us to get this point. They don't know the work that Chief Thompson put in," Wilkins explained.

City Manager Kate Hosier said in an interview in March 2025 that when they hired Thompson in 2016, "There was a portion of that process where stakeholders from the community were invited to come and be a part of that process. I see that happening again this time."

With the filing of Carlotto's lawsuit, some have speculated that his lawsuit would cause tension and dissension within the police department. Those with knowledge of the mood in the South Haven Police Department state that it has not affected the atmosphere or the morale of the department

Tallship MJ is holding lonely vigil in Northside Marina

By James Windell

Gently rocking in the calm water in Black River on a mild wintery day, the Tallship MJ is holding vigil in boat Slip 22 near South Haven's Northside Marina.

MJ is covered with white canvas except for its two tall masts pointing to a heaven that could dump a winter storm on it at any moment.

There are few boats and fewer tall ships still in the river, but MJ will brave the Michigan winter in South Haven – as opposed to staying closer to its summer port at the Inn at Harbor Shores in St. Joseph, Michigan.

Owner Captain Megan Cairns asked to store MJ in South Haven this year and the Harbor Commission and the South Haven City Council agreed she could do that. In a pilot program, a deal was struck whereby MJ could stay in boat slip 22 until April – at a cost of $1500.

At the Harbor Commission meeting in October, 2025 when the request was first made by South Haven resident Captain Cairns, Michael Landis, Assistant City Manager and Harbor Master, told the Harbor Commission that under this pilot program, the City would provide a provision of electrical service only for participating vessels, along with the use of bubblers to prevent ice formation. These vessels would be permitted to remain in the northside or maritime marina from October to April.

Captain Cairns said that the reason she approached the City about wintering in South Haven was primarily because South Haven is her home town. "Having the boat in the water in the winter has some great benefits, but it also has risks," she said. "But having her in a close harbor that I can easily get to during a snowstorm to check on how the ship's weathering is an incredible help."

She added that, "Everyone at the marina has been so supportive of us and the ship, which is really important, because it truly takes a community to help care for these old ships."

The MJ is 50 years old, although she was made traditionally like fishing boats from Nova Scotia from the 1860s. "In the summer, we dock at the Marina operated by the Inn at Harbor Shores," Cairns said. "There we run two-hour trips through the historical bridges and out to Lake Michigan. We always set as much sail as we can and help our guests feel the magic of the seas, sun and sailing."

Cairns said that they do a Kids Neverland Sails. "Here the kids tap into that universal fascination with pirates, and they haul sail, sword fight and steal the captain's (my) treasure," she said.

"The boat will be here until April," commented Landis, "and is a welcome addition to the northside."

SHAWSA holds meeting to explain water and sewer rates

By James Windell

Dana Burd, Public Works Director, thought South Haven area residents just might have questions about their water and sewer rates. So, he held a public meeting at South Haven High School on Monday December 8, 2025.

Not only did the public as well as South Haven city officials turn out for this informational meeting, but they did have questions.

When they got an opportunity to ask questions, residents raised their concerns about high monthly bills, inconsistent charges among neighbors, and a lack of clarity on rate tables and meter sizing.

Going into the meeting, Burd said that he thought the meeting would be important because "It gives the public a chance to learn how the water and sewer system works, what goes into setting rates, and how to better understand the bills they receive."

Burd began the meeting by talking about the infrastructure background and the development of the water and sewer system in South Haven, South Haven Township and Casco Township. He said that South Haven and surrounding townships have invested in water and sewer infrastructure since the late 1800s, with significant expansions in the late 20th and early 21st centuries. "Much of the water and sewer system is aging, requiring ongoing replacement and upgrades," he told the audience.

Although the South Haven Area Water and Sewer Authority (SHAWSA) was originally formed in 1992, a new authority was established in 2016. This new SHAWSA facilitated collaborative management, common ownership, and cost-effectiveness across the region. The SHAWSA service area includes South Haven city and three townships, each with unique historical investments, asset bases, and customer distributions.

"SHAWSA is a separate public entity without its own staff," Burd said, "and the City of South Haven provides operations, maintenance, billing, and administration."

Burd said that there has been a significant amount of construction on the water and sewer system this year. He explained that he and the SHAWSA Board, through the informational meeting, wanted to give customers a better understanding of the rates and fees that fund system operations and ongoing investment. He adds that much of the approximately $42 million in current project work was required by the State of Michigan, and SHAWSA was fortunate to receive about $20 million in grants to help offset costs

In discussing rates, Burd said that rates are set to cover the cost of service, not to generate profit, but that "All investments, debts, and operational costs are paid by customers."

He explained that significant prior and ongoing debts arise from large capital projects and compliance with state and federal mandates. However, he said that previous refinancing helped reduce system costs.

Burd said that water and sewer rates have seen steady increases due to mandatory system upgrades, with recent increases at 6.9% and 4.5% for water and sewer respectively. "Future increases are expected to trend with inflation after the current investment peak is over," he added.

In trying to explain the charges that customers see on their bills, he said that fixed and variable charges appear on monthly bills. There are usage charges, ready-to-serve fees (higher if larger meter size), and additional township-specific debt recovery charges. While SHAWSA sets the rates for water and sewer services, SHAWSA uses a rate consultant for regular reviews and benchmarking, "aiming for stable, predictable costs and compliance with required debt coverage and cash reserves."

He also explained that while the system has grown through new connections, that does help to offset some costs but typically new customers do not lead to dramatic decreases in the rates because of increasing investment needs.

In answering questions posed by residents, Burd and City Engineer, Mike Dopp, said that high ready-to-serve charges, especially for homes with larger meters (often installed for fire suppression), can double fixed costs. Some audience members said that they did not understand the size of meters and why different homes had different size meters. They did state that some home owners could potentially reduce their water bills by reducing the size of their meters.

Responding to customer questions and concerns, Burd and Dopp acknowledged challenges in comparing costs across communities and explained that more customers help offset, but not necessarily lower costs due to investment cycles. Also, questions about the fairness of high connection fees and the structure of fixed vs. usage-based charges led to discussion of national best practices and local constraints. Burd also said, in response to a question, that fluoride is used in the water.

Some residents suggested a need for more accessible, transparent rate tables and individualized review of billing discrepancies. Burd indicated that they would follow up personally with customers who raised questions at the meeting and that the SHAWSA website provided more information about rates and meters.

"The SHAWSA Board does hold public monthly meetings, similar to City Councils and Township Boards," Burd said. "Each year, rates and fees are discussed and presented to the Board, including Cost of Service (rate) studies that take a comprehensive look at expenses, revenue, and debt to determine rate recommendations."

SHAES to acquire new fire boat

South Haven Area Emergency Services (SHAES) will be bolstering its water rescue capabilities.

The SHAES Authority Board recently approved the $400,000 purchase of a new fire boat to enhance water-based fire suppression, rescue, and dive response capabilities. When it is put into service in 2027 it will replace a 26-year-old (1999) Zodiac vessel, according to Chief Brandon Hinz.

The area served by SHAES includes approximately 10 miles of Lake Michigan shoreline (Van Buren State Park north to Casco Township). In addition, there are over 1,000 boats in the South Haven harbor and along the Black River during the summer months.

The new vessel is a 28-foot Sounder manufactured by North River Boats of Roseburg, Oregon, and will be specially equipped to serve the SHAES Dive Team and have a 500-GPM pump to support marine and shoreline fire suppression.

Through a favorable manufacturer discount from North River, SHAES was able to bring the cost of the new boat within the Authority's Capital Replacement budget, Hinz said.

To support rapid deployment and response times, the City of South Haven has generously offered dock space near the City North Marina, an optimal location for emergency operations on Lake Michigan. The current boat is trailered and needs to be launched before responding to emergencies.

Due to the dock's exposure to channel swell and surge, a boat lift will be required to protect the vessel, extend its service life, and ensure long-term reliability. While the fireboat was budgeted, the lift itself was not included in the capital plan.

The American Legion Post 49 Auxiliary recently contributed $2,000 toward the $30,000 boat lift. Fundraising efforts are continuing toward the lift, according to Hinz.

"We are pleased to honor the service SHAES provides our community each and every day," said Mary Fitzgerald, Auxiliary President. "SHAES provides vital services to our communities every day, most often assisting veterans and their families in time of need."

String of county break-ins lead to Kalamazoo apartment

Detectives from the Van Buren County Sheriff's Office (VBCSO) are narrowing in on suspects behind a string of vehicle break-ins and thefts across several communities in West Michigan.

The multi-agency investigation led law enforcement into Kalamazoo after tracking a child's stolen iPad to Fox Ridge Apartments, according to VBCSO.

VBCSO deputies are investigating 13 vehicle break-ins reported across the Village of Bloomingdale, Bloomingdale Township, Columbia Township, and Waverly Township in recent days, according to VBCSO Undersheriff Casey Davis.

"We took a handful of larcenies from motor vehicles, and because of how many there were, we worked a joint investigation with Michigan State Police (MSP)," Davis said.

Davis said that the break-ins are primarily targeting unlocked vehicles in neighborhoods.

"It's a crime of opportunity," Davis said. "They're targeting neighborhoods because they can hit a lot of vehicles at the same time."

Among items reported stolen from the spree include a child's iPad, keys to vehicles, and a firearm, Davis said.

The firearm and keys to vehicles remain unaccounted for, and no suspects have been identified at this time; however, the iPad may prove crucial in solving the case, according to VBCSO.

Using the iPad's location tracking, law enforcement was led to Fox Ridge Apartments in Kalamazoo where MSP investigators reportedly found the iPad in plain sight inside a vehicle believed to be used in the thefts.

The vehicle had been reported stolen from Kalamazoo, according to investigators, and was left running in the parking lot, providing potential clues.

This K-9 will play a critical role in keeping our community safe, supporting our deputies, and strengthening our emergency response capabilities. We are confident that Deputy Bingaman and K-9 Charlie will make an outstanding team."

He concluded, "The Sheriff's Office K-9 Unit is a vital component of local law enforcement efforts, assisting in high-risk operations, search-and-rescue missions, and proactive community engagement. K-9 Charlie will also be present at upcoming community events and demonstrations, helping build positive relationships between law enforcement and the public."

Megan Dooley returns to The Groovin' Grove for a live show

By James Windell

What do you do when you're a little girl and your father insists on singing Christmas carols when you are out shopping in department stores?

Of course, you will probably be embarrassed. And you might wish he would stop. But if you are young Megan Dooley, you finally give up and start singing with him.

And once she joined in with her father she began to notice something surprising.

"I started noticing how it lightened up people's load," the Kalamazoo-based singer said in a recent interview. "I would see faces change. When we were singing Christmas carols people would smile and their sad faces would change into happier ones. I recognized then the power of music."

She said that her father is the reason why she plays and sings in front of audiences.

Dooley, who has been referred to as the "First Lady of The Kalamazoo Music Scene," will be performing at The Groovin' Grove in South Haven on Saturday, December 20, 2025.

Although her father sang in stores when they were Christmas shopping, he was an important influence in Dooley's life. "My whole family is musical," Dooley said. "My grandfather played guitar, my uncle also played the guitar, and my parents were incredible vocalists. They were always singing."

Although neither parent was a professional singer, they sang in groups and certainly encouraged her singing. "I grew up around singing all the time," she notes.

She also says that it was her father who taught her how to whistle – something she incorporates into her shows. "I've been whistling for several years, but I would have been doing it sooner if I had realized that people would like it. I didn't think it would go over very well when I first started out. But one day I just decided I didn't care if anyone else liked it because I liked it and I was going to try soloing with my whistling. And people loved it."

Something else that is a highlight of her shows is her wide repertoire. Her strength as a singer lies in her ability to bridge eras as she can move seamlessly from Fats Waller to Tom Waits and from Bessy Smith to Edith Piaf. She explains this by joking that she has "genre ADD." However, there is also another explanation.

"I love Fats Waller, but I'm very interested in prohibition-era music and jazz," she explains. "That music has so much character and is fun. The songs from that era are really diverse in terms of subject matter and styles. I'm a student of history so I like to research songs and I enjoy finding old, interesting songs that people might have forgotten about."

However, she also writes songs and her originals are sprinkled through every performance. And since her Groovin' Grove show will be during the Christmas holiday season, she will sing be Christmas songs too.

Dooley will perform her solo show from 7:00 pm to 9:00 pm at The Groovin' Grove, 72040 M-43, South Haven. For more information, visit The Groovin' Grove live music schedule at https://thegroovingrove.com/live-music-schedule

Christmas stories read by South Haven writers

By James Windell

Local writers and members of South Haven Writers shared original Christmas stories and cookies in what has become an annual event.

Reading their own short stories, nine members of the South Haven Writers, South Haven's writing group, entertained family and friends at their last monthly meeting of the year at the South Haven Memorial Library on Friday, December 12, 2025.

Led by Bryan Lundgren, who refers to himself as facilitator rather than president of the group that was founded in 2007 by Joan Wendland, the feedback for the writers who read their short works was knowing nods, outright laughter, and warm applause. Although the stories and short essays were sometimes poignant and sweet and sometimes funny and ironic, all were read by their authors – most wearing Christmas sweaters or Santa Claus caps. All had gained confidence in reading their work in public by attending regular meetings of South Haven Writers.

"At every meeting we do what call read arounds," Lundgren, who has been a part of Southy Haven Writers for more than 10 years, said during a cookie break in the meeting. "We have a rule of positive comments only."

Lundgren, who has published hundreds of newsletter article, said that he belongs to another writers group that takes a different approach. "They really beat you up," he said, "and I don't like that. We are all adults here and we learn by listening."

Lundgren said that by being a member of the group he's become a better writer and now even feels comfortable writing poetry. "When I first joined the group, I was an engineer and I didn't do poetry," he remarked. "Now I do poetry because certain things are better expressed by poetry."

He went on to say that about half of the regular members of the group have had their work published.

Lundgren points out that new members are always welcome and anyone can come to a meeting and participate – either by listening to others read their new work or by offering encouragement to budding authors.

"Every month I offer a theme people can write about," Lundgren said. "They can write a short piece about this theme or just work on their own thing."

South Haven Writers meets monthly (except from June to August) and their next meeting is at 1:00 pm on January 23, 2026 in the Community Room of the South Haven Memorial Library, 314 Broadway, South Haven.

We Need The Good News of Christmas

MIKE'S MUSINGS

MIKE WILCOX
PUBLISHER

I was searching for words that would express an uplifting spirit this Christmas season. Too many of us, my self-included, consider the holiday season to be a distraction rather than a time to rejoice. Well my friend, Glenn Mollette happened to send me this piece while I was searching and lo and behold, after reading, I came to the conclusion that this is the season for joy and thankfulness. I must partake in it, because being happy and thankful is contagious, and I would like everyone to share that happiness this holiday season. Read on and focus on good things and cast aside the bad.

Dr. Glenn Mollette

We never get a break from bad news. In recent days we have heard of people being killed at a Hanukkah celebration in Australia. There have been more school shootings from Brown University to Kentucky State University. Russia continues to bomb Ukraine and groceries continue to assault Americans' pocketbooks.

Yet, at Christmas time the overriding theme is good news. In a world of so much bad news comes the holiday of good news. The angel who appeared to the Shepherds who were watching their flock said, "Do not be afraid, I bring you good news that will cause great joy for all the people. Today in the city of David a Savior has been born to you; he is the Messiah, the Lord," Luke 2:10-11.

The central person of the good news is Jesus. He is the one the angels celebrated. His birth gave them reason to appear and make the wonderful announcement that brought joy to the shepherds and all who would be impacted by the birth of Jesus.

This Christmas you are probably one of many who welcomes good news. Maybe you have buried a wife, a husband or a child. At times, the loneliness and grief are unbearable and you wonder how you will ever survive your missing loved one. People are suffering financial stress from the cost of everyday living Sickness invades our lives at one time or another impacting us or someone we love. Life is filled with stressful situations that often rob us of peace.

The good news of Christmas is God has come in the flesh to love us, walk with us and bring joy that nothing or no one else can give. Jesus said "My peace I give unto you, not as the world gives, but give I unto you," John 14:27.

This Christmas there is much to focus on. You can spend your day focused on the Democrats or the Republicans. You can focus on our President or members of Congress. You can focus on all that you do not have or all that you wish you did not have. You can focus on your situation, your age, your health or you can focus on everyone else. Will this bring you joy?

Do not focus on regrets. Do not focus on mistakes, problems, old habits or sins. Jesus came to help us overcome all of these and more. Because of his life, death and resurrection we have a Savior who has given us every reason to look up and forward instead of down and back.

Jesus told his disciples in John 16:33, "Take heart, I have overcome the world."

While the media is filled with bad news, take heart, the message of Christmas is good news. Therefore, as Jesus said, "Let not your heart be troubled." May we all be filled with the good news of the great story of Christmas.

Sheriff's office dispatchers take 96,000 calls through November

"In the month of November, Van Buren County Sheriff's deputies handled 835 calls for service, putting the total for the year at 9,388. Deputies made 301 traffic stops in November, putting the total for the year at 4,307. Dispatchers took 7,690 phone calls in November, putting the total for the year at 96,433. Out of the calls for the year, 35,352 were 911 calls. Fun fact, November has been the slowest call volume for dispatchers at that number and July was the busiest with 10,501 calls," said Van Buren County Sheriff Daniel Abbott.

A deputy on patrol was attempting to catch up to a vehicle in Bloomingdale Township when the suspect vehicle lost control and went into a ditch. The driver took off on foot but was quickly taken into custody for the incident and had a warrant for his arrest. The other two occupants of the vehicle were checked and had warrants for their arrest. The front seat passenger was also charged with possession of methamphetamine. All three were transported and lodged at the Van Buren County Jail.

"Deputies are actively investigating a sextortion case. The victim met the suspect on a dating app, and screenshots were shared. The victim is now being exploited in this case. Once the case is complete and all the information is obtained from the case, a warrant will be sought on the suspect," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Felony warrants were obtained for the two suspects who cut down a walnut tree at a public access in Bloomingdale Township," said Sheriff Abbott.

Deputies are participating in the OHSP (Office of Highway Safety Planning) grant to target drivers under the influence of alcohol/drugs this month. Deputies will be on overtime with reimbursement through the program to work extra hours and days to help combat intoxicated drivers.

Deputies handled a major fraud case. The victim had $10,000 transferred out of a bank account. "The bank employees worked with our office and the victim very professionally in this case. Suspects were identified and three-count felony warrants were issued on the suspects for fraud withdraw/transaction, computer-fraud access-More than $10,000, less than $20,000, and computer-use to do crime. The two suspects are now going to be held accountable for their actions. Great job by everyone involved in investigating this case," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Our Dispatch Center was drawn for a random audit conducted by the State 911 Office Certification Sub-Committee. The audit includes a financial review, site visit, and overall evaluation of all aspects of the operations of our dispatch center. The preliminary draft report came back highlighting several notable findings indicating the "Level of Excellence and Professionalism Exhibited Here." Other items noted were the "Team Cohesion," "High Dispatcher Morale," "Secure & Professional Environment," and "Commitment to Public Safety." The final report will be released once approved by the Certification Sub-Committee and then the State 911 Committee. Once again, cannot say enough good things about our dispatchers and all the employees here at the Sheriff's Office. This once again is another example of what I am always saying about our office and staff. A huge shout out to the dispatchers on the report and for making our dispatch center what it is today," said Sheriff Abbott.

"We put our new canine into service this week after Deputy Bingaman and K-9 Charlie Graduated from their Training Together. K-9 Charlie is a 1 ½ old German Shepard from Poland. We are all very excited to add him to our team and have no doubt the two of them will be rock stars in their new roles here," said Sheriff Abbott

Where Can I Get a Copy of the Beacon?

James Windell

"I couldn't find the South Haven Beacon at my usual pickup spot? Where can I get it?"

"Where's a place near me I can get a copy of this week's Beacon?"

"Where's the best place to find the Beacon?"

As the correspondent reporting the South Haven news for the South Haven Beacon, people assume I know where they can grab a copy of the Beacon. Since most people haven't met or had contact with Mike Wilcox, the Publisher of the Beacon, if there's a problem or a concern then I'm the one who hears about it.

If the Beacon shows up late or isn't in the spot they usually find it, I hear about it. That happens to my wife, Jane, as well. When she agreed for better or for worse, she didn't know that one day that would mean she would be expected to know how to locate a copy of the Beacon. But she takes her role as wife of the South Haven Correspondent seriously. So, she has been known to go looking for a copy of the newspaper to hand deliver to people.

Not only do we get asked some variation of the questions at the beginning of this column at least once a week, but we hear from many people about where they usually find a copy of the paper. And we keep a list of where the paper has been spotted in our heads.

Of course, some readers subscribe to the online edition of the Beacon. That solves the problem of locating a physical copy of the paper – and it's only $20 a year.

But where can you find the Beacon? Here's what we tell people:

There's a box where the Beacon, which is always free, is deposited every week. That box is on Phoenix Street between the Dimitridon Studios Rock Shop at 418 Phoenix and the parking lot for Consumers Credit Union in downtown South Haven. But also downtown, the paper is dropped off at City Hall, across Phoenix Street at Visit South, at Combs Barber shop at 428 Phoenix, and at Harbor Light Brewery at 516 Phoenix. In addition, it can be found at Sweet Haven Candy shop at 411 Phoenix and at Murphy's Antique Mall at 321 Center Street.

Copies are delivered to the South Haven Memorial Library and to My Town Ace Hardware at 530 Huron Street. The Bean Box, at 225 Broadway also gets copies delivered.

On Blue Star Highway, the paper is delivered to the lobby of the Police and Fire Department, Bronson Hospital, Al-Van Humane Society Rescued Treasures resale shop, and at South Haven Township offices at the corner of Blue Star Highway and 140.

Back to Phoenix and going east out of the downtown area, copies can usually be found at Walgreens at 1100 Phoenix and at Three Blondes Brewing, 1875 Phoenix.

Two other place we've seen it is the Habitat for Humanity ReStore at 2959 73rd Street and at Meijer.

I'm sure it might get delivered to other places. If so, let us know. We'll add other pick up locations to our list so we are prepared for the next time someone asks, "Where can I get a copy of this week's Beacon?"

GOBLES — Coach Dan Morris points out this is Gobles; second year with an all-girls wrestling team.

On Sunday Dec. 14, Gobles we traveled to Gull Lake High School to compete in their Girls Blue Devil Classic.

"Some of the top talents in the area were present and our girls were gritty through the whole day," Morris said. "Due to injury, we only had four of our five girls able to compete but still managed to take 16th out of 28 schools.

Sophomore Alyssa Sparks wrestled at 105 pound and went toe to toe with some of the toughest girls in the area.

"Falling victim to pin in her first match to a strong opponent from Hastings, she hit a mental reset and came back to pin her next opponent in 35 seconds. Her last match of the day she wrestled one of Plainwell's best wrestlers but came up short."

Junior Freedom Morris started her day off with a win over a faster opponent from Mattawan.

"They went back and forth for the first two periods with Freedom ending the match by pin. Her second match was even tougher against Olivet's 110 pounder. "She fought well, hit the best head and arm reversal we've seen, but got stuck in a tough pin at the end. She bounced back in her next match to seal the deal by pinning her opponent in a cradle after a handful of great takedowns. Losing her last match of the day, she earned a fourth-place medal.

"Junior Ashlyn Myers is having a great start to her first season wrestling. She pinned her first opponent in 45 seconds. Her second match of the day was against last year's state runner up from Three Rivers. She wrestled well but fell victim to pin. She then won her next two matches, securing a 6th place finish. Ashlyn continues to grow and make strides in the right direction every day. She is also currently tied for first place for takedowns on the girl's team."

Morris added:

"Sophomore Jasmine Gutierrez is also in her first year wrestling with the Gobles team. After losing her first match to her opponent from Otsego, she bounced back to win three matches in a row, all by pin. In her last match of the day she fell victim to pin by a more experienced wrestler from Portage Northern earning her a 5th place finish. Jasmine will be a force to be reckoned with in the coming weeks."

The Girls hit the mats again in Brandywine this upcoming Saturday 12/20.
